September 2011 Flood Guide

Policy Statement

2-1-1/First Call For Help has made every effort to include in this directory the most current and accurate information on not-for-profit agencies providing flood-related services to Broome County residents. For the most part, information included has been provided by the individual agency. The primary procedure for obtaining information has been to contact, usually in writing, the agency sponsoring a particular service/program. In some instances, telephone contacts have been made.

2-1-1/First Call For Help does not recommend or endorse any agency. We have no control over how an agency represents itself or how it provides its services, and we are not in a position to mediate complaints about agency actions.

Changes/Updates

2-1-1/First Call For Help welcomes updated information, comments, and suggestions for future issues of the September 2011 Flood Guide. Given the vast quantity of information included and the rapidity of changes that occur in the information, there is certain to be items that need to be changed. We monitor changes and encourage you to contact us if you have questions or comments about the material included in this directory.

Inclusion Criteria

The following policy is used by 2-1-1/First Call For Help when considering agencies for inclusion in the September 2011 Flood Guide. The policy is intended to ensure consistency and utility of the directory. The directory is not a full compendium of resources available to the community--additional information may be obtained by contacting our office. If you cannot find a resource for a specific issue or need, please call us. Guide editions will be dated on the cover. Please contact us to ensure you are using the current guide.

The policy is only a guideline--if there are services not included which you feel should be, please contact our office. Final decisions on exceptions to this stated policy are made through discussion with area professionals, United Way staff, and the 2-1-1/First Call For Help Advisory Committee.

To be included in the Case Management Flood Guide:

- 1) Agency must provide flood-related human service to Broome County residents or have a funding, planning, or coordinating role in the flood-related network. A human service is defined as an activity providing assistance to people in obtaining services to meet their needs. Needs include, but are not limited to: food, clothing, housing, employment, health care, legal assistance, mental health, and financial resources.
- 2) The service provided by an agency must be provided during the flood-recovery time period.
- 3) Agency must be either:
Public Agency - tax-supported and required by law to service all eligible applicants. This include municipal departments of local, state, and federal government, OR Private Not-for-Profit - operated with funds received from fees for services, contributions, and/or public sources. Prohibited by law from making a profit.
- 4) For-profit businesses may be included. Inclusion or exclusion does not indicate endorsement or non-endorsement of any agency or service. 2-1-1/First Call For Help recommends resources such as the Yellow Pages for identifying and locating resources dealing with flood-related problems in the business sector.

What to Expect After Registering for FEMA Register at 1-800-621-3362

Please remember to fill out all paperwork including the SBA loan application.

Once registered, an applicant can expect a phone call from a FEMA inspector to set up an appointment. Normally, this call will come within a few to ten days. The applicant or someone at least 18 years old who lived in the home before the flooding occurred must be present when the inspection takes place.

FEMA inspectors are contracted independent experts qualified to assess damages to buildings and other property that might have been damaged from the storm and the subsequent flooding. Inspectors will always carry an official identification, and applicants are urged to jot down the badge number of the inspector who visits for future reference.

Inspectors do not determine whether an applicant or the damaged premises qualify for federal assistance. That is done by FEMA Individual Assistance personnel after evaluating the inspectors' reports.

There is no charge for these inspections. The applicant will need to provide documented proof of ownership (for homeowners) and permanent occupancy (for both homeowners and renters). For example, these may include a utility bill or a copy of a rental lease.

The inspector will ask the applicant to sign a form authorizing FEMA to verify that the information given is accurate. Within 10 days, a letter will be sent by FEMA to the applicant with notification about the decision of whether the applicant is eligible for help. If so, that letter will be followed by a check or direct deposit. The letter will explain what the money can be used to pay for, and applicant should be careful to use the funds as indicated.

If FEMA decides the applicant is not eligible for help, the letter will state the reasons for the denial of benefits. The letter will outline the process to appeal the decision.

An applicant might be referred to the Small Business Administration for help. If so, he or she will receive an application for a low-interest loan to repair or replace real estate (up to $200,000) or personal property (up to $40,000). No one is required to accept any SBA loan, but filling out the application is part of the assistance process and help FEMA in evaluating or re-evaluating any data.

Safety Issues

SAFETY ISSUES - GENERAL INFORMATION

Floodwater may contain sewage. Protect yourself and your family by following these steps for cleaning inside and outside of the home:

Inside the Home:

- Keep children and pets out of the affected area until cleanup has been completed.
- Wear rubber boots, rubber gloves, and goggles during cleanup of affected area.
- Thoroughly clean all hard surfaces (such as flooring, concrete, molding, wood and metal furniture, countertops, appliances, sinks, and other plumbing fixtures) with hot water and laundry or dish detergent, then disinfect with a solution of 1 cup household bleach to 5 gallons of water. (Note: this solution should not be used for drinking, cooking or personal hygiene).
- For items that cannot be washed or dry-cleaned, such as mattresses and upholstered furniture, air dry them in the sun and then spray them thoroughly with a disinfectant. Steam clean all carpeting.
- Remove and discard contaminated household materials that cannot be disinfected, such as wall coverings, clothes, rugs, and drywall.
- Help the drying process by using fans, air conditioning units, and dehumidifiers.
- After completing the cleanup, wash your hands and any other exposed body parts with soap and sanitized or disinfected water. If your water supply has been contaminated, use water that has been boiled for 1 minute (allow the water to cool before washing your hands).

Or you may use water that has been disinfected for personal hygiene use (solution of 1/8 teaspoon of household bleach per 1 gallon of water). Let it stand for 30 minutes. If the water is cloudy, use solution of 1/4 teaspoon of household bleach per 1 gallon of water.

Wash all clothes worn during the cleanup in hot water and detergent. These clothes should be washed separately from uncontaminated clothes and linens. It is recommended that a Laundromat be used for washing large quantities of clothes and linens until your onsite wastewater system has been professionally inspected and serviced. Seek immediate medical attention if you become injured or ill.

Outside the Home:

- Keep children and pets out of the affected area until cleanup has been completed.
- Wear rubber boots, rubber gloves, and goggles during cleanup of affected area.
- Have your onsite waste water system professionally inspected and serviced if you suspect damage.
- Wash all clothes worn during the cleanup in hot water and detergent. These clothes should be washed separately from uncontaminated clothes and linens.
- After completing the cleanup, wash your hands and any other exposed body parts with soap and sanitized or disinfected water.
- If your water supply has been contaminated, use water that has been boiled for 1 minute (allow the water to cool before washing your hands).

Or you may use water that has been disinfected for personal hygiene use (solution of 1/8 teaspoon of household bleach per 1 gallon of water). Let it stand for 30 minutes. If the water is cloudy, use solution of 1/4 teaspoon of household bleach per 1 gallon of water.

- Seek immediate medical attention if you become injured or ill.

SAFETY ISSUES - CHILDREN'S SAFETY

Special Concerns for Children

Children are different from adults. They may be more vulnerable to chemicals and organisms they are exposed to in the environment because:

- Children's nervous immune response, digestive and other bodily systems are still developing and are more easily harmed;
- Children eat more food, drink more fluids, and breathe more air than adults in proportion to their body size - so it is important to take extra care to ensure the safety of their food, drink, and air;
- The way children behave - such as crawling and placing objects in their mouths - can expose them more to chemicals and organisms in the environment.

Lack of a reliable water supply, sewage and sanitation services, food supply, electricity and communication networks could all place children in harm's way. More specifically, water may not be safe for children to drink, and debris and mud may contain disease-causing organisms and chemicals that could potentially harm children. Lack of sanitation and sewage services could lead to infections and diarrhea-related diseases. Flood water in homes and schools may cause mold growth, deterioration of lead paint, and structural damage. Mold growth will be one of the most challenging and long-term problems resulting from the hurricanes and floods. Standing water may result in more mosquitoes and other pests. As the debris and mud begin to dry out, the amount of dust in the air will increase. Clean-up activities may expose children to a variety of chemicals. For more information on protecting your children's health, please visit the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's webpage at www.epa.gov

Flood waters may contain fecal material from overflowing sewage systems, and agricultural and industrial byproducts. Although skin contact with floodwater does not, by itself, pose a serious health risk, there is some risk of disease from eating or drinking anything contaminated with flood water.

If you or your child have any open cuts or sores that will be exposed to flood water, keep them as clean as possible by washing well with soap to control infection. If a wound develops redness, swelling, or drainage, seek immediate medical attention. If you or your child receive a puncture wound or a wound contaminated with feces, soil, or saliva, contact your medical provider to determine whether a tetanus booster is necessary.

In addition, parents need to help children avoid waterborne illness. Do not allow children to play in flood water areas, wash children's hands frequently (always before meals), and do not allow children to play with flood-water contaminated toys that have not been disinfected. You can disinfect toys using a solution of one cup of bleach in 5 gallons of water.

SAFETY ISSUES - DRINKING WATER

Water-Borne Risks

Many wells and water supplies may be contaminated and unsafe to drink. Both ground and surface water sources of drinking water may be contaminated due to flooding. Until you are certain that your tap water meets federal drinking water standards, either through notification by your local water utility or testing your private well, pregnant women and children should drink bottled water. Bottled water should also be used to mix baby formula and for cooking.

Water for Drinking, Cooking, and Personal Hygiene

Safe water for drinking, cooking, and personal hygiene includes bottled, boiled, or treated water. Here are some general rules concerning water for drinking, cooking, and personal hygiene.

Remember:

- Do not use contaminated water to wash dishes, brush your teeth, wash and prepare food, wash your hands, make ice or make baby formula, or give to pets. If possible, use baby formula that does not need to have water added.
- You can use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer to wash your hands. If you use bottled water, be sure it came from a safe source. If you do not know that the water came from a safe source, you should boil or treat it before you use it. Use only bottled, boiled, or treated water until your supply is tested and found safe.
- Boiling water, when practical, is the preferred way to kill harmful bacteria and parasites. Bringing water to a rolling boil for 1 minute will kill most organisms. When boiling water is not practical, you can treat water with chlorine tablets, iodine tablets, or unscented household chlorine bleach (5.25% sodium hypochlorite). If you use chlorine tablets or iodine tablets, follow the directions that come with the tablets.
- If you use household chlorine bleach, add 1/8 teaspoon (0.75 ml) of bleach per gallon of water if the water is clear. For cloudy water, add 1/4 teaspoon (1.50 ml) of bleach per gallon. Mix the solution thoroughly and let it stand for about 30 minutes before using it.
Note: Treating water with chlorine tablets, iodine tablets, or liquid bleach will not kill parasitic organisms.
- Use a bleach solution to rinse water containers before reusing them. Use water storage tanks and other types of containers with caution. For example, fire truck storage tanks and previously used cans or bottles may be contaminated with microbes or chemicals. Do not rely on untested devices for decontaminating water.

SAFETY ISSUES - EMERGENCY POWER RISKS

Without electricity, people may turn to portable gasoline (or diesel) powered generators, gas or charcoal stoves, grills, portable camping stoves and other devices to cook indoors. This is dangerous and could be deadly. Carbon monoxide is produced whenever any fuel such as gas, oil, kerosene, wood, or charcoal is burned. Exposure to carbon monoxide reduces the blood's ability to carry oxygen and can lead to death.

ELECTRIC & GAS RESTORATION PROCEDURES

Restoration of natural gas service in areas impacted by flood water requires special procedures. The first thing to remember is that if you smell natural gas, get up, get out and call NYSEG at 1-800-572-1121 from another location. Do not light matches, use any electrical appliances, turn lights on or off, or use the phone in your home or building. These may produce sparks. As flood waters recede, NYSEG crews will shut off service to flooded buildings for safety reasons.

For natural gas service to be restored, the following conditions must exist:

- For safety reasons, the customer will need to have a plumbing or heating contractor make sure the gas appliances affected by the flood are in working order before they can reconnect and relight the pilots.
- The customer must be present for the crew to reconnect the service.
- The basement must be free of standing water.
- Electric service must be available.
- NYSEG crews will check the condition of NYSEG equipment.
- At least one natural gas appliance not affected by the flood must be ready to light.

Prior to the restoration of electric service the following conditions must exist:

- If the electric equipment has been under water, the customer must have the main fuse box/circuit breaker box inspected by a Certified Electrical Inspector. The NYSEG crew will determine if this is necessary depending on the condition of the fuse/breaker box.
- The customer must be present to reconnect the service.
- The basement must be free of water.
- The electric panel must be clean and free of debris.

NYSEG reminds customers that safety is paramount. Customers should never enter a flooded basement or attempt to relight pilot lights. In addition, customers should stay away from any fallen wires - they may be deadly.

If you see fallen wires or any other electric emergency, call NYSEG immediately at 1-800-572-1131.

To report a gas emergency, call 1-800-572-1121

SAFETY ISSUES - FOOD SAFETY

How to Make Sure Your Food is Safe

- Food and medicine that has been exposed to flood waters should be discarded because of possible contamination.
- Destroy all contents of foods in glass jars that have been exposed to flood waters.
- Wash canned goods that have come in contact with flood waters with soap and hot water. Check for broken food-safety seals. Destroy canned food if swelling, rusting or serious denting is visible.
- For infants, use only pre-prepared canned baby formula that requires no added water, rather than powdered formulas prepared with treated water.
- Thawed food can usually be eaten or refrozen if it is still “refrigerator cold,” or if it still contains ice crystals. To be safe, remember, “When in doubt, throw it out.”
- Discard any refrigerated or frozen food that has been at room temperature for two hours or more and any food that has an unusual odor, color, texture.

Emergency Cooking

- Canned food can be eaten right from the can. If you heat the can, be sure to open it and remove the label first.

Indoors:

- For emergency cooking you can use a
- fireplace
- barbeque grill
- camp stove.

Do not use a grill with charcoal briquettes for cooking indoors. Doing so can cause carbon monoxide poisoning.

Outdoors:

- Always use a charcoal grill outdoors. You can also heat food with candle warmers, chafing dishes and fondue pots.

For more information on spoiled food and frozen foods, injuries, home clean up to avoid disease, and other health issues relating to the floods, visit the New York State Department of Health website at www.health.state.ny.us. or call Cornell Cooperative Extension at 772-8953.

SAFETY ISSUES - MOLD GROWTH

Mold Removal and Safe Debris Removal Tips

- Many houses will experience mold growth after flooding. Call 1-888-293-7020 or visit www.bt.cdc.gov/disasters/mold/ for guidelines issued by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) on the safe and effective cleanup of household mold.
- While cleaning mold, anyone allergic to mold may experience a stuffy nose, irritated eyes, wheezing, skin irritation, difficulty breathing, or shortness of breath. People with weakened immune systems and chronic lung diseases may develop mold infections in their lungs. If any health-related problems appear after working around mold, contact a doctor or other health care provider immediately.
- For maximum protection, when working with moldy materials, wear an N95-designated facemask or NIOSH-approved respirator, rubber boots, rubber gloves, goggles, and a soft hat or hard hat (if there is any danger of falling debris or electrical hazards). Be sure to throw away all porous items that were wet because they can remain a source of mold in the future, even if they not moldy now. Further information on cleaning mold is available by calling 1-888-293-7020 or visit www.bt.cdc.gov/disasters/floods.
- Additional information can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency at 1-800-438-4318 or by visiting www.epa.gov/mold This website provides in-depth guides on how homeowners can clean mold from residences and prevent future mold growth.

For questions about mold, check the Broome County Health Department Web page, Mold and Human Health @ www.gobroomecounty.com and follow the links.

SAFETY ISSUES - TOXIC FUMES

Carbon Monoxide (CO) Awareness

- Clean-up efforts after returning to homes and businesses can present life-threatening hazards to storm victims, including leaking natural gas lines and CO poisoning from the use of un-vented fuel-burning equipment.
- CO is a colorless, odorless gas produced when fuel is burned and can kill when present in high amounts. Symptoms of CO poisoning are feeling sick, dizzy, or weak. Anyone experiencing any of these symptoms should get fresh air right away.
- Do not use fuel-burning devices in homes, garages, or other confined spaces or within 10 feet of windows, door, or other air intakes. This includes charcoal/gas grills, gas generators, gas tools, etc.

Cleaner, Disinfectant, and Pesticide Awareness

- Mixing some household cleaners together can produce toxic fumes, injury, or death. When working with household chemicals, be sure to have adequate ventilation, remain in the room no longer than necessary and allow plenty of time for the room to air out. Read and follow all label instructions carefully.
- Use fans throughout the cleaning process as long as there is no standing water or any other potential electrical hazard.
- In case of poisoning/chemical ingestion, call the Poison Control Center at 1-800-222-1222 immediately. Do not induce vomiting unless you have been instructed to do so.

Airborne Asbestos and Lead Dust Avoidance

Asbestos is fibrous material used in some pipe insulation, ceiling tiles, exterior siding, roof shingles, sprayed-on soundproofing, and many other materials in older buildings, mostly built before 1970. Asbestos was used to strengthen products, provide heat insulation, and fire resistance. Breathing asbestos can lead to lung cancer, mesothelioma, a cancer of the lining of the chest and the abdominal cavity; and asbestosis, in which the lungs become scarred with fibrous tissue.

Lead is a toxic metal producing a variety of adverse health effects, especially in young children. Homes built before 1978 probably have lead in their original paints. Moving materials containing lead based paint could cause lead dust to concentrate in the air.

- If you suspect your home contains asbestos or lead-based paint, you are strongly encouraged to use contractors who are specially trained to deal with these substances. Home can be tested for lead-based paint.
- If the asbestos is in good condition, it is best to just leave it alone since it probably will not release asbestos fibers into the air.
- Materials with asbestos or lead-based paint should be handled while still wet or damp and double bagged.
- While handling these materials, gloves, goggles, and OSHA-approved respiratory protection should be worn.
- Wash hands and clothing while still wearing the mask after handling or cleaning either of these materials.
- Do not do anything that generates dust from or disturbs the surfaces of the areas with lead-based paints because this will cause the lead to enter the air.
- Families should not live in residences while work is being done to remove either asbestos or lead-based paint.

For more information on the safe management of asbestos, visit www.epa.gov/asbestos/ashome.html.

For more information on the safe management of lead-based paint, visit www.epa.gov/oppt/lead.

SAFETY ISSUES - WELLS

The Broome County Health Department has set up a system to assist owners of private wells with their flood recovery. Staff can provide guidance on potential impact to their wells, how to conduct a sanitary survey to identify sources of pollution, and steps to take for well disinfection. Assistance with bacteriological check samples is also available. Residents who live in a valley bottom area with permeable soils should consider checking their wells if the flood water got within 100 feet of the well. Any well owner that had flood waters above or surrounding the top of the well casing or noticed a change in taste, odor or color as a result of flooding should also check their wells.

Disinfecting Wells

If you suspect that your well may be contaminated, it needs to be disinfected. For information on how to disinfect bored or dug wells, go the Broome County Health Department's web site at www.gobroomecounty.com or contact Environmental Health Services at 607-778-2887.

Well & Septic System Testing

Floodwaters are frequently contaminated with a variety of pollutants including sewage and fuel oil. If your water supply is from a private well on your property and that wellhead was covered by floodwaters, the well may have been contaminated. To protect your family from this contamination, your well should be tested as soon as power has been restored to your house. Your county health department does well testing and will issue the necessary documents to show that your water is safe. Septic systems can also be damaged by floodwaters and must be tested/inspected to ensure that they will perform properly and protect your family from sewage backups and contamination. Once again, contact the county health department for testing/inspection information.

AFTER FLOOD CAR CARE

High water can damage your vehicle

According to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), floods are one of the most common and widespread of all disasters. Most communities in the U.S. have experienced some level of flooding from high water due to spring rains, heavy thunderstorms or winter snow thaws. While your vehicle may not have been flooded or completely covered in water, that doesn't necessarily mean that you should not be concerned about water damage. If you drove through high water, there's a chance that you may have damaged your vehicle. It all comes down to how much water the vehicle took in and where it reached. Follow these guidelines to check for damage due to water intrusion and contamination.

- Check interior carpets, upholstery, door and trim panels for dampness. If they are wet, then the vehicle will need professional attention. If all you do is let the carpet dry, you will quickly be rewarded by mildew and nasty odors. Seat brackets, motors and modules should also be checked for rust and proper operation.
- Pull the engine oil and transmission fluid dipsticks and differential plug. If the fluid appears milky, diluted, is no longer its original color or is beige in color, then it is likely the pans contain water. The vehicle should be towed to your ASE certified mechanic or repair shop. Driving the vehicle with water present may damage the internal parts and require extensive overhaul or repairs. (NOTE: Some new synthetic differential fluids may appear milky but are not water contaminated, when in doubt let a professional make the evaluation.)
- Check the air filter for water. If it is wet, replace the air filter and change the oil.
- Check the undercarriage, bumpers, radiator area and frame for mud, grass, dirt, debris and rust. If any of these are present, have the vehicle washed and cleaned as soon as possible.
- Have the brake system check by a professional.
- Check the exterior lights for moisture and water. Replace headlights and bulbs that contain water or condensation.
- Listen for abnormal noises while the engine is running. Make a note of where the noise is coming from and take the vehicle to a mechanic as soon as possible. Pay particular attention to the alternator, serpentine belt, starter, power steering unit, air conditioner and wheel bearings.
- Inspect the suspension joints and lubricate as necessary. Many newer vehicles are lubricated at the factory for life; however, these joints should be checked for rust.

Information for Displaced Binghamton University Students

Academics:

The recent flooding has had a direct impact on many Binghamton University students and faculty. Many have suffered catastrophic losses. Many of these students are anxious about their ability to attend classes and complete assignments as they cope with the loss of their residence and possessions. Given the wide-ranging impact of the flooding, Interim Provost Jean-Pierre Mileur has asked faculty to be as flexible as possible in dealing with students who have been affected and to be considerate of students as they attempt to recover and get caught up in their courses.

In addition, the following offices can be contacted for information and services:

Housing

Binghamton University has limited temporary housing in Johnson Hall available to off-campus students who have been displaced due to flooding. Students interested in temporary housing should visit the Residential Life Office weekdays between 9 AM and 4 PM. The Residential Life Office is located in room O'Connor Hall, Room 105 and can be reached at 607-777-2321, reslife@binghamton.edu or reslife.binghamton.edu

Off-Campus Housing Assistance

The University's Off-Campus College offers regular legal clinics for off-campus students who wish to meet with an attorney to discuss their legal rights, lease agreements and other issues surrounding renting. OCC may also be able to provide information on what apartments are currently available in the community and what options may be available for possible on-campus housing.

Financial Aid

Counselors are available to help students identify potential resources as needed and may also be able to re-evaluate their eligibility for additional loan and grant opportunities. The Financial Aid and Student Records Office is located in the Student Wing, Room 119, and can be reached at 607-777-2428, finaid@binghamton.edu or <http://www.binghamton.edu/financial-aid>

Counseling

The University Counseling Center provides comprehensive preventative and clinical services to BU's undergraduate and graduate student community. In times of crisis such as this, victims may experience great emotional distress. Students affected by the flooding and in need of support are encouraged to contact the Counseling Center at 607-777-2772 or stop by the center in Room 1202, Library North, Glenn G. Bartle Library. Evening and weekend emergencies call 9-1-1 from a campus telephone or 607-777-2393 to reach University Police.

BUILDING CONTRACTORS/CLEANING SERVICES

Unfortunately, sometimes people try to take advantage of people in crisis for their own gain. Here are some tips provided by the Vestal Police Department in regards to Building Contractors/Cleaning Services.

- Ask to see some form of identification from the person.
- Request a written estimate which includes a description of all services to be provided.
- Make sure that you obtain a phone number, company name and name of the person providing the estimate.
- Beware of contractors who ask for cash deposits prior to performing the requested work.

NEVER pay for the work in advance.

- Obtain receipts for all work performed.
- Request to see the contractor's Workers Compensation and liability insurance policies and retain that information for your files.
- Make sure that the contractor has filed for the appropriate building permits if he is performing rehabilitation or reconstruction to your residence or business.
- If you have a question regarding the legitimacy of a contractor, contact our local Building and Code Enforcement Department or your local Police Department with your concerns.
- If you receive a questionable solicitation from a contractor or cleaning service, attempt to obtain the license plate number from the vehicle.
- Do not agree to have the work done on the spot. You should attempt to obtain more than one estimate from qualified contractors.
- All contractors who are soliciting business door-to-door must register with the local Clerk's Office and obtain a permit. You can confirm with your local Clerk that the contractor soliciting business has in fact obtained the proper permit(s).

Thanks to the Vestal Police Department for pulling this information together!

Mutual Self Help Housing Program

Many rural families have achieved the American Dream of owning their own home through USDA Rural Development's Mutual Self Help Housing Program. Under this program, households provide a substantial portion of the labor involved in building their own homes. This "sweat equity" contribution reduces the total costs of purchasing a home and provides the family with immediate equity in their home. The families supply the necessary labor while obtaining the loan to purchase land, materials and to subcontract work on very technical items. A private or public nonprofit corporation or a public body obtains a Section 523 Mutual Self Help Technical Assistance Grant to provide the training, homeownership education, construction supervision and guidance needed to fulfill goals of the self-help housing program. The participating families, nonprofits and Rural Development all work together to provide housing for a group of families in need.
